

#36 | Review of a Summer Tale

Dear all,

this fall edition of our newsletter displays, with an abundance of pictures, that CRC members have been very busy going on field trips, visiting conferences, organizing workshops, giving lectures and publishing papers. And this even though we are approaching deadlines to hand in project proposals for a possible continuation of the CRC in phase III.

In project Z we're currently also getting ready for the upcoming application phase by partly re-structuring our website. Maybe you've already noticed that the list of all CRC members can now be found under the heading About the CRC and that there have been some changes to the Communication page. Additionally, in the next few months we will for example better organize the Events section and create a new page for Early Career Researchers. Please bear with us while we are working on the website and please let us know if you have any feedback!

In the meantime we wish you all a good semester! Keep up the good work!

Best wishes,
Eva & Christine

Welcome

- Welcome to Carolin Dudschig, who has replaced Andreas Trotzke as new professoral substitute at the beginning of October. Her areas of research include language and cognition. Carolin Dudschig, who will have her office in the Philosophikum (Room 2.120), will teach classes at the IDSL1, this semester for instance titled Negation and Language electrified.
- We also warmly welcome Ina Bornkessel-Schlesewsky and Matthias Schlesewsky from the University of South Australia (see pictures below). While Ina is Professor of Cognitive Neuroscience, Matthias is Professor of Psychology. They have arrived on October 20 and will stay for 3 months as Global Faculty Members of the University of Cologne. Both will also teach at the IDSL1 this semester. Ina Bornkessel-Schlesewsky will give a class on Introduction to Data Science while Matthias Schlesewsky's class is titled Neurotypology: Many Languages, one Brain.

Goodbye, Semra

1. What did you enjoy most during your time in the CRC?

The friendly atmosphere and solidarity amongst my colleagues and fellow PhD students. Thanks to them, moving to Cologne and settling down felt like an easy thing to do. In addition, I appreciated and learned a lot from our discussions and topics during the shared Area B meetings - those were a real highlight for me.

2. What will your new position be and what makes it interesting for you as a researcher?

I am now a postdoctoral researcher at the German linguistics department of the University of Bielefeld, with the focus on language variation/sociolinguistics. This is a new specialization area for me and I am very excited about it! In my habilitation project, I plan to investigate socio-structural variation at the level of speech act realization, in particular with respect to apologies and requests.

3. Why do you think research on linguistics is important?

There was a time last year when I questioned my very own contribution to society through linguistic research. During that time, I talked to lots of non-linguists and most of them were very excited about language. I listened to many stories about how "finding the right language" affected their lives. Our conversations reminded of the great diversity of our area of research with its various research traditions and intersections to other disciplines like sociology, anthropology or psychology. I decided to elaborate my research to the communicative functions of language and incorporate sociocultural theory.

ICPhS20

Many of our CRC members traveled to Prague to attend the International Congress of Phonetic Sciences, which took place August 7 - 11. Find some impressions and a report of the Sustainability Group below.

Reports from the AG Sustainability about ICPhS20 ♻️

In August, a big delegation of the CRC attended the International Congress of Phonetic Sciences (ICPhS) in Prague. We asked them anonymously how they travelled there, which sustainable practices they liked at the conference and what they thought could be improved. Here are the results!

Out of 18 attendees, 12 (i.e. two thirds) travelled to Prague by train as opposed to only 6 (i.e. one third) who travelled by plane. The latter number also includes people who went to Prague not from Cologne but from other places which were further away. The journey by train was around 10 hours or more, so we are very happy that many people still chose the train over the plane. This helped reduce the CO₂ emissions of the CRC, following our self-commitment on sustainable practices - thank you! Additionally, many attendees noted that they genuinely enjoyed the train ride. Some of them travelled with a bigger group of CRC phoneticians, and many were happy to see the beautiful view of the Elbe Sandstone Mountains.

At the conference venue, many attendees noted good sustainable practices. The welcome package included reusable water bottles to refill on-site as well as a public transport pass for the week. There were few printed paper booklets, instead, the full programme could be found in a mobile phone app. The welcome package also did not include merchandising or other items that might have been unnecessary. Additionally, the catering company self-proclaimed to have used locally sourced and seasonal ingredients and the food was served on regular reusable plates and cutlery (however, alongside single-use cutlery during the coffee breaks). What also stood out was the keynote lecture by Pavel Trofimovich, who dedicated his slot to talk about socially responsible research, including a section on environmental sustainability. If you are interested, you can watch a recording of the talk here (Select 10.08.2023 - Thursday, click on Keynote lecture 11:00 - 12:00h, then click on Videorecord).

On the other hand, the attendees also noted some practices that could have been improved to make the conference more sustainable. They would have preferred more vegetarian and vegan options for the lunch catering and the conference dinner. It was also suggested that vegetarian-only meals could have been considered. Additionally, the single-use cups and plates that were provided during the coffee breaks (alongside reusable ones) were deemed unnecessary. The use of paper could have been reduced even more by not providing any printed booklets (because the programme could be found in the mobile app) and by considering a digital presentation of posters (instead of printing them). Finally, it was noted that a hybrid option could have been more sustainable, because fewer people would have had to travel to Prague in person.

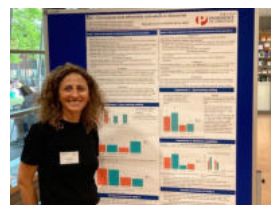

Thanks to all of the ICPhS attendees for sharing their thoughts! This gives us valuable insight for the organisation of future events here in Cologne.

That's all from us for now!

Best,
The Sustainability Group

More Lectures & Presentations

- Eva Schultze-Berndt (Mercator Fellow) gave a talk at the 10th European Australianist Workshop, which was organized by the Department of Linguistics and took place on August 14 - 15. Her talk was about Pluractionality in Jaminjung-Ngaliwurru and its interaction with overt event categorisation.
- Jacopo Torregrossa (C03) presented two talks at the EUROSLA conference in Birmingham, UK, taking place August 30 - September 2 (Chris Bongartz, Sonja Eisenbeiß, and Andrea Listanti as co-authors). EUROSLA is the biggest European conference on bilingual and second language acquisition. The titles of the presentations were Bilingual reading improves bilinguals' ability to integrate information from different texts and Bilingual children's Theory of Mind abilities: The benefits of biliteracy exposure.
- B06 presented two posters at the 29th Architecture and Mechanism for Language Processing (AMLaP) conference, which took place in Donostia-San Sebastián, Spain, August 31 to September 2. Find pictures of Sarah Verlage and Barbara Zeyer below. Other CRC members also presented posters at AMLaP (e.g. Timo Buchholz (C04) and Norielle Adricula (Fellow B05)). Find more information in the last edition of our Newsletter or find the conference program here.

Projects C03 and C04 attended the 5th CRC Networking Workshop in Potsdam on August 23. This picture shows Derya Çokal (C04) in front of her poster.

Upcoming Lectures & Presentations

A02 | (virtual) guest lecture | Simon Wehrle | Bilingualism and Developmental Linguistics Research Group, University of Edinburgh | November 20

B04 | Haydar Batuhan Yildiz | Linguistischer Arbeitskreis Köln (LAK) | Morphological reduplication or syntactic recursion? Double causatives in Turkish | November 29, 6 p.m.

In the new lecture series called Germanistische Linguistik und aktuelle Gesellschaftsthemen, experts will report on the contribution of German linguistics to contemporary issues. Findings from linguistic research on current social issues such as language images, language in war, language and trustworthiness, language in the media, or language and AI will be discussed and thus contribute to a deeper understanding of these current and important social issues.

The lecture is a cooperation between the University of Cologne (Klaus von Heusinger) and the University of Tokyo (Yoshiki Mori). It will be held online on Tuesdays from 12 - 1:30 p.m. German time (and 8 - 9:30 p.m. Japanese time), making it available to a wide audience. Each of the five lectures will have two presenters who will first give introductory talks on the topic (25 min each) and then answer questions from the audience. Find more information on the lecture series here.

The poster features a background image of a city street with people and buildings. Text on the poster includes:

Past Workshops

CRC Day

Sketch Engine

On September 29, CRC members met to discuss project plans for phase III. Find some impressions here and more information on the CRC Days here.

As a satellite workshop, Elen le Foll (Associate C02) gave a workshop titled Making the most out of Sketch Engine: A corpus linguistics workshop in the Seminargebäude on September 28.

Voices in Contexts

- See above the group of participants at the workshop Voices in Contexts, which was aimed at early career researchers and dealt with the prosody-pragmatics interface. It was organized by Maria Lialiou (A01), Malin Spaniol (A02), Janne Lorenzen (A07) and Timo Buchholz (C04), see second picture.
- The workshop Voices in Context was also visited by Bodo Winter (Mercator Fellow), who visited Cologne October 9 - 13 to give his own workshop on Introduction to Bayesian statistical modelling with brms.

Constantijn Kaland (A03) gave an online workshop on Cluster Analysis on f0 Contours: Advantages, Pitfalls, Challenges on November 9 - 10. It was organized by LingLabs of the University of Konstanz and took place via Zoom.

On November 9 - 11, Klaus Heusinger (B04) organized an international conference on Argument Structure in Romance (XI. NEREUS Workshop) together with Alina Tîgău (University of Bucharest). It took place at the University of Bucharest and you can find more information here.

Upcoming Workshops

On November 15, the Student Council for Linguistics and Phonetics, together with the Department of Linguistics, is organizing the career day Perspectives for Linguistics. Students can get to know different occupational fields and ask speakers questions about their background and their current job. Some current and some former CRC members will also present their paths. Further information and the program can be found here.

The Grimme Institut together with the KPA Skills and Structures in Language and Cognition organize a conference titled Vertrauen in Wissenskommunikation (Trust in Communication of Knowledge) taking place November 16 - 17 in the Seminargebäude. It is a transdisciplinary conference bringing together perspectives from philosophy, psychology, the language sciences and media sciences. Find more information and sign up (free of charge) here.

Projects C02 and C06 invite you to the workshop Argumentation and maneuvering agreement in discourse on December 7 - 8, which will take place on the Spitzboden (HoP). It will be held on Thursday afternoon and Friday morning. If you want to participate, please send an email to Isabel Fuhrmann (ifuhrma2@uni-koeln.de) or Jakob Egetenmeyer (j.egetenmeyer@uni-koeln.de) before November 30. Please also let them know if you want to join for dinner on Thursday, December 7.

On December 13 - 15, Márton Sóskuthy will give a workshop on Generalized Additive Modeling. More information will follow soon.

Being visible and getting heard

The CRC's gender board is happy to announce our first workshop day Becoming visible and getting heard. We have scheduled it for January 26, 2024 with a focus on Empowerment.

In the morning of January 26, we invite all FLINTA PhDs and postdocs of the CRC to the interactive workshop You want power? by Naomi Ryland. Naomi Ryland is a social entrepreneur and advocate for feminist leadership; she writes and speaks about purpose, power and privilege. In the sheltered atmosphere of max. 30 participants, we will explore how we define power, how we want to use it in our own lives and careers, and how we can lift ourselves and others to overcome oppressive systems.

In the afternoon of January 26, we invite all members of the CRC to come to a reading by the linguist, rapper and author Dr. Reyhan Şahin (aka Lady Bitch Ray). She will read passages from her book Yalla, Feminismus and provide us with "survival tips for academics". Her book is relevant not only to women*, but also to anyone interested in placing subtle forms of discrimination into the specific context of their own experience, regardless of gender identification. Moreover, the book is a valuable resource for everyone who works with women* and wishes to enhance their awareness of structural disadvantages. The moderator for this block will be our fabulous colleague Semra Kizilkaya.

Following Dr. Reyhan Şahin's contribution, there will be time to get-together, mingle and socialise in the bar of Die Wohngemeinschaft.

For more information, please refer to the flyer. If you would like to join, please register by either using the QR-code provided on the flyer, or by following this link. Please make sure to register until November 15th, to assist us in planning the workshop's finer details.

400 Publications

In total in the first and second funding phase, the members of the CRC have now published more than 400 publications. We know that many more are in the making! Keep up the good work! Find all CRC-related publications on our website and have a browse through the most recent ones below.
